

Scenario Planning

Today's planners and policymakers operate in a world of rapid technological, demographic and economic change. By developing and analyzing future scenarios, public agencies can better prepare for the coming years and optimize investment for the future. Doing so will allow them to invest in ways that maximize infrastructure resilience, economic competitiveness, and quality of life.